Cushman & Wakefield, as exclusive advisor, is pleased to present the opportunity to purchase a warehouse/manufacturing building within the provincial Bay Area community of Alameda, California. 1950 North Loop Road is a high functioning ±17,246 square foot building, with dock and grade level loading capabilities, ±2,840 square feet of executive offices, and an additional ±3,000 square feet of structural mezzanine ready for custom applications. ±4,350 aggregate square footage of three (3) independently controlled refrigerated storage areas, with ±3,650 SF capable of storage at 24' clear height.

This is the first time the building has been offered for sale since construction was completed in 2007, and it previously served as the corporate headquarters and primary distribution point for Pacific Rim Produce's regional operations. The building's unique design features, which includes 800 AMPS of power at 277/480V, allowed the current owner to install three (3) independently controlled refrigerated storage areas within the warehouse, and these multi-million-dollar capital improvements are intended to be delivered with the building at the close of escrow.

The North Loop Center at The Waterfront is the development that the subject property is a part of, and it consists of eleven owner-user buildings that are generally occupied by their original owners. The Alameda submarket, given its lack of a mature industrial property base, presents significant barriers to entry for warehousing, manufacturing or R&D companies that desire to operate from one of the safest, amenity rich and geographically central markets in the Greater Bay Area. The active Harbor Bay Ferry Terminal is also walking distance from the building and affords the real prospect of Bay Area wide employee recruitment for a future occupier, a factor that led to recent influx of biotech and life science tenants in the immediate neighborhood.
