

the rotunda

900 & 1010 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland OH, 44115

Very few retailers ever get a room like this.

The Rotunda is a rare opportunity to lease one of Cleveland's most iconic spaces at Euclid Avenue and East 9th Street in the heart of Downtown. Thirteen marble columns, a bronze mezzanine rail, Millet's murals and daylight through leaded glass create an environment that cannot be replicated.

A store here is an attraction before it is a shopping trip. For a flagship retailer, grocer or experience-driven concept, few spaces offer this level of architecture, identity and destination appeal.

We look forward to presenting the unique opportunity in the heart of Downtown Cleveland.

the history

The Cleveland Trust Building, 900 Euclid Avenue

George B. Post designed the Cleveland Trust Building in 1907. Francis David Millet painted the murals. The rotunda ceiling and neo-classical, Renaissance revival detailing made the building a tourist stop almost immediately.

Early 1990s: Banking moves out

The rotunda closed to the public after Ameritrust merged with Society Bank. KeyBank kept using parts of the property until 1996.

2005: Cuyahoga County buys in County commissioners bought the rotunda, the adjoining 28-story Ameritrust Tower, and several other buildings from the Jacobs Group for $21.7 million. The plan was a government headquarters. Asbestos removal, architectural work, and other costs pushed the county's total investment to nearly $40 million.

Late 2000s: The headquarters plan falls apart

The county couldn't afford the redevelopment and walked away. Commissioners floated demolishing the Ameritrust Tower, but the rotunda's spot on the National Register of Historic Places kept it protected. A separate deal to sell the complex to K&D Group also collapsed when the developer couldn't line up financing for a planned hotel, apartments, and office space.

2013: Sold for redevelopment

The county sold the complex to the Geis Cos. for $27 million, well below its $40 million investment. Geis converted the property using federal and state historic tax credits. Marcel Breuer's Ameritrust Tower became The 9, a mixed-use building with a hotel and apartments. Heinen's opened inside the rotunda in 2015, and was the only full grocery store in Downtown Cleveland until its closure in 2026.

the rotunda

Situated under a 61-foot-diameter stained-glass rotunda, this well-respected historical building offers an upscale location at the most pivotal intersection in downtown Cleveland.

Euclid Avenue is the central spine of the city and being on E 9th places this building along the primary bridge between the central business district and the gateway district. Customers are already right outside your door, and they have money to spend. The upcoming data for traffic volume, demographics, and market dynamics help with your brand alignment and driving sales volume. This is the lifeblood of retail.
